John,

As we face opposition to the Seven Corners plan, I've been convinced that I'm seeing other high density development in the area. With some Google searching, I found the Mason Row project in Falls Church received preliminary BOS approval last month and will be located at Leesburg Pike and West St. See <http://www.fallschurchva.gov/1381/Broad-and-West-Redevelopment-Mason-Row> . The project would include the following:

- six-story mixed-use building with a ground floor retail use of 46,931 square feet;
- five-story residential multi-family rental apartments with 253 units above the one story ground floor retail spaces;
- four-story condominiums with 67 units; and
- five-story hotel with 150 guest rooms, 92k square feet

This will be roughly 460k sq ft of development on 3.91 acres or a FAR of at least 2.7. Although not quite as large as the Sears project it would be pretty similar and with a FAR of 2.8 versus 1.37 for Sears. Other recent projects in Falls Church include Northgate, Timmins Hill, 301 W Broad St (hole in the ground right now) and Pearson Square. All of them run on the order of 300 apartments plus some retail and all have a FAR of 2.5 or higher.

Best regards,
Marty
